Poppin Introduces Stash Locker

➤ As the modern day employee continues to gravitate toward a mobile work style, companies are shifting their focus to provide adaptable options for employees who are constantly on the go.

Popping up in offices and communal style workplaces across the country, “office hoteling” is a reservation-based style that allows employees to schedule and reserve their own workspaces before they arrive at the office on an as-needed basis.

The Stash Locker from Poppin was designed with this evolving office environment in mind. Given that almost 90 percent of workers prefer to work remotely at least part-time, the demand is heightening for seamless organizational tools. With workstations changing owners by the day, Stash Lockers offer a reliable, stationary storage options employees can call their own.

Poppin’s Stash Locker allows workplaces to cater to the needs of remote workers who only come into the office occasionally, without distracting from the workflow and collaboration of on-site employees.
